Mind Map

Instructions

On the blank page below, map your thoughts around the following questions:

1. What kinds of impacts are you hoping to have with your engagement work? (You can refer to the back of this worksheet for impact types.)
    a. Are these directly or indirectly connected with your scholarship?

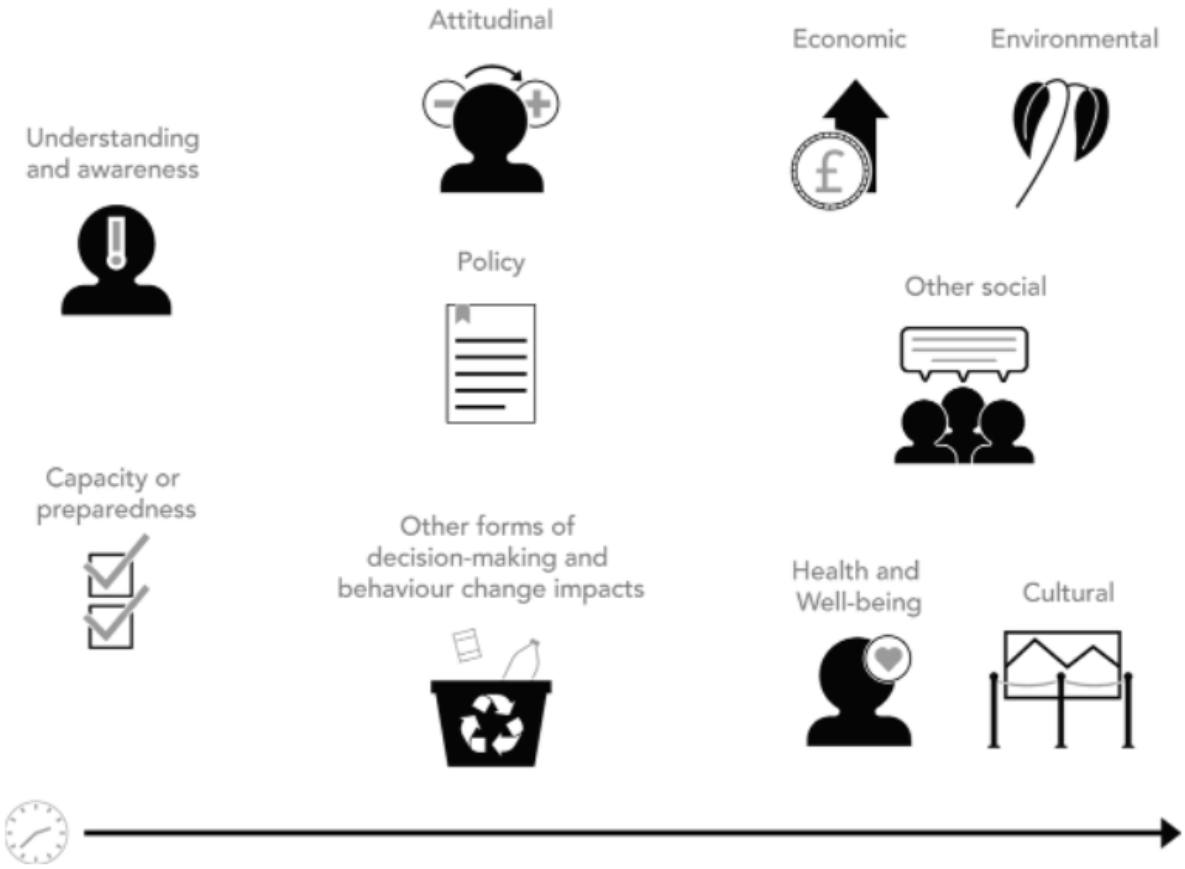
2. Think back to the societal spheres and goals you explored in the last discussion with others in your discipline/field.
    a. What larger societal issues, policy areas, behaviors, attitudes, practices, etc. link to your research?
    b. What problems or needs are there in these places?

3. Other than researchers, who might be interested in some aspect of your work?
    a. What are those interests and why would they be interested?

4. What would need to happen for your research/work to become more relevant for the people that you just listed?
    a. If they were more connected to your work, what would change, and how would you document that change?

Be prepared to share one discovery that you made with a partner.

What kinds of impacts are you hoping to have with your engagement work?



From Reed, M. (2018). What is Impact? In The Research Impact Handbook (2nd ed). https://www.fasttrackimpact.com/what-types-of-impact-are-there-subp