Dear Colleagues,
Applications for the 2019 Rackham King Talks are now open. Please share the email below widely with your networks and feel free to personally invite anybody to apply,
Thanks

Paul

Dear Rackham Students,

The Rackham Graduate School is excited to announce that applications for the 2019 King Talks are now open.
King Talks is an annual event where Rackham students give 10 to 12 minute talks that blend their research, their passion, and the theme of the MLK symposium event.

This year's MLK Symposium theme is: "UnRavel!" Please note that although these talks are in the spirit of Dr. King, they do not have to be about Dr. King directly. Talks need to reflect the theme but how you do that is completely up to you. We welcome submissions that reflect different viewpoints, academic disciplines, and speaking styles.

To be eligible to participate you must:
*Be a Rackham Graduate Student
*Have a passion for spreading your message
*Be available for training and feedback sessions with Rackham Staff.

The Rackham King Talks will take place on Tuesday, January 22, 2019 at 6:00 p.m. in the Rackham Ampitheatre.

If you are interested in applying, please fill out this application form and a member of the Rackham Team will be in touch with you soon.

Participants will be given a $250 honorarium upon successful completion of the event.

In addition, three informational sessions have been scheduled have been scheduled to answer questions and provide supplemental information. The dates, times, and locations of these sessions are below.

Tuesday, October 9, 3:00 PM to 3:30 PM (WEBINAR)
Tuesday, October 16, 4:00 PM to 4:30 PM (Rackham Development Conference Room, 1st Floor Rackham)
Wednesday, October 17, 9:30 AM to 10:00 AM (Rackham Development Conference Room, 1st Floor Rackham)

If you wish, you may view the 2018 King Talks to better understand the experience.

Please contact Paul Artale if you have any questions: artale@umich.edu

Thank you,
