The Advanced Specialty Education Program in Endodontics

Commendation

"The program director and teaching staff are commended for their strength in research, excellent clinical skills, and firm commitment to providing the highest quality of advanced specialty education in endodontics."

Dr. Neville McDonald (left), director of the School's endodontics program, and Dr. Mark Robinson, a graduate endodontics resident, view an image of a lower molar tooth undergoing a root canal procedure. Visible are the openings of the three canals of the root portion of the tooth, which contain the nerves, blood vessels, and other tissues of the dental pulp.
