Reinventing Regions…..

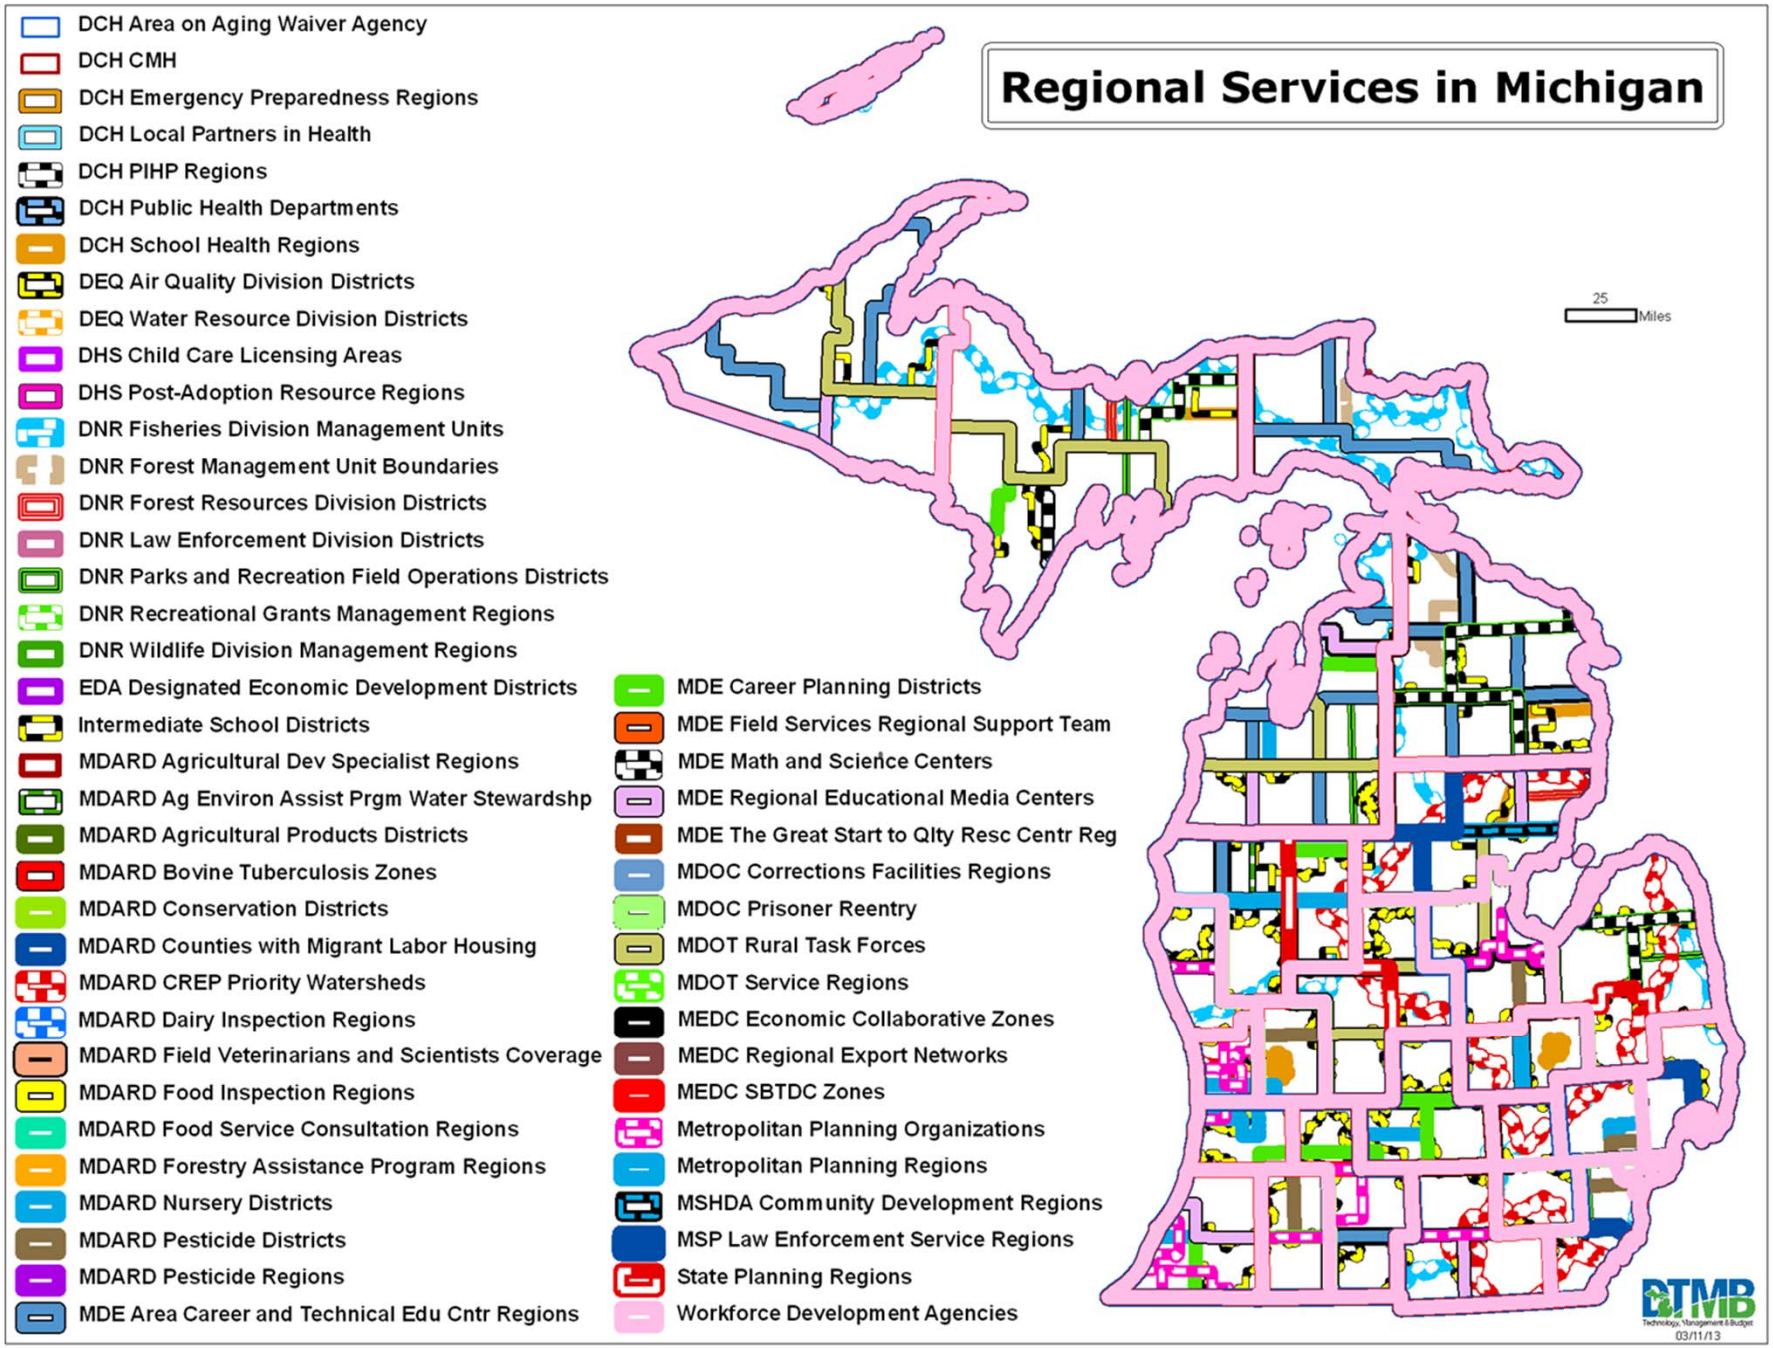

- Economies are Regional
- Economic prosperity requires everyone working together toward a common vision
- Workforce, Planning, Transportation and other local organizations are all critical partners in economic development
- Collaboration can be difficult when institutional and geographic boundaries work against local and regional efforts

Michigan's Old Service Delivery Model:

"The Spaghetti Map"

Regional Services in Michigan

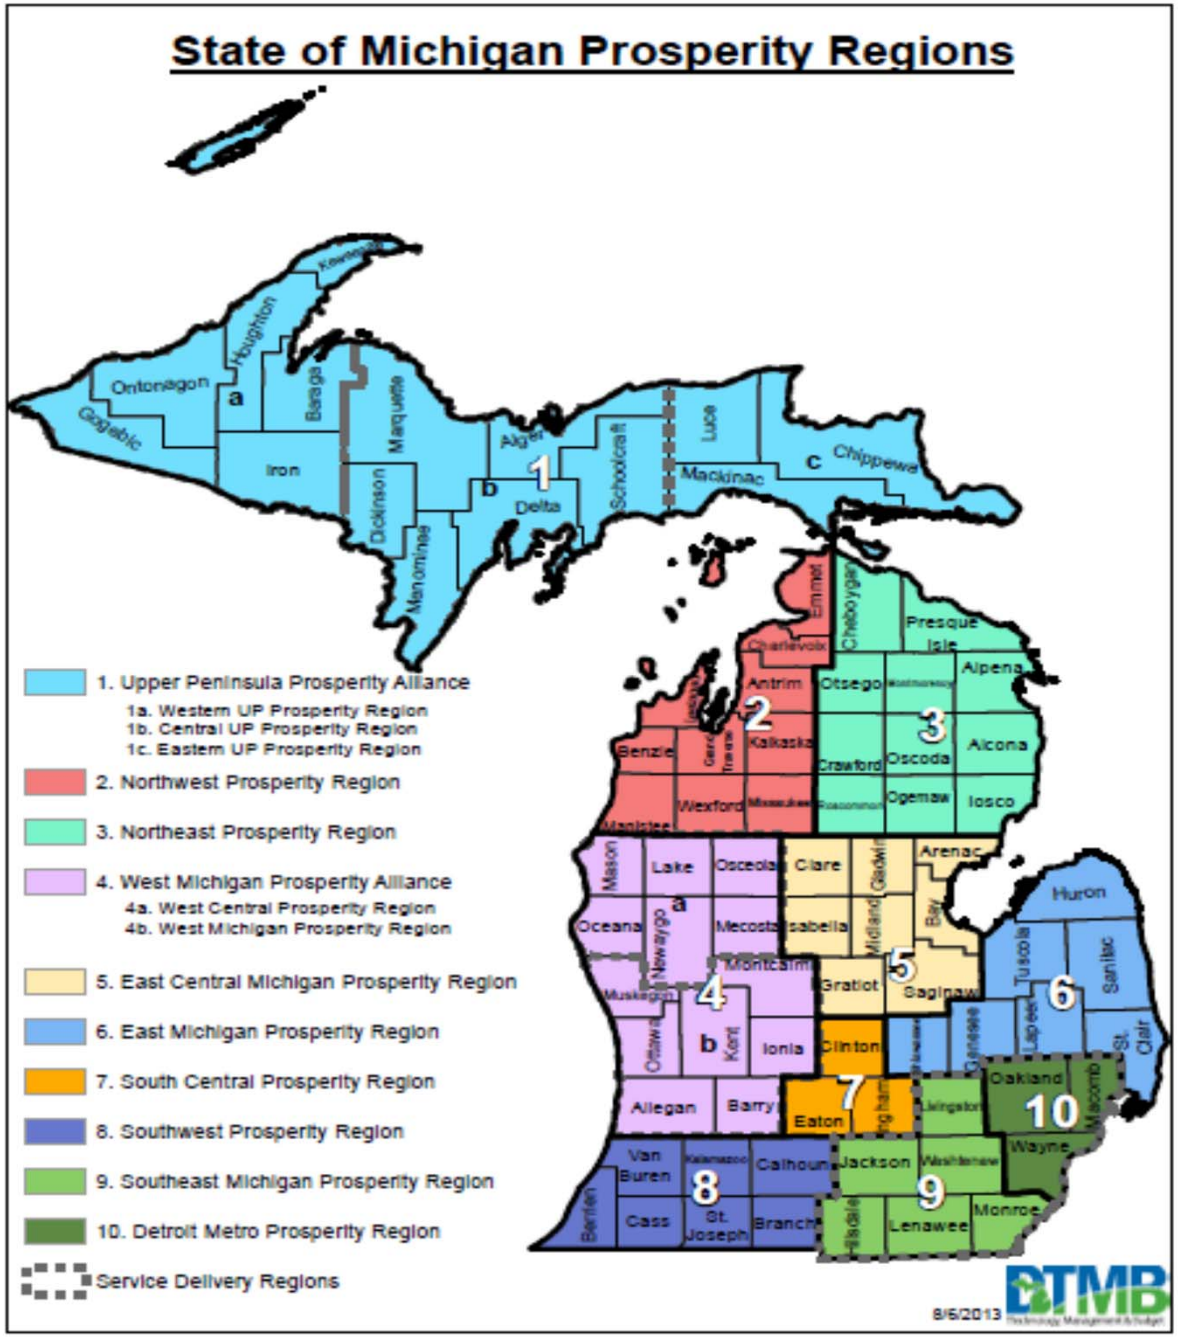

Changing the Landscape of Collaboration

- Collaborating around a common vision for prosperity requires shared regions for aligned service delivery.
- Governor has directed all state agencies to align their services around a new common service delivery map.
- Common regions create a platform for collaboration
- Regions designed around labor sheds, commuter patterns and other pertinent data and local input

ECONOMIC TRENDS

A SNAPSHOT OF REGION 8

Source: W.E. Upjohn Institute for Employment Research

POPULATION

There is expected to be an increase in retirees, 30-somethings, and preschoolers by 2025.

EMPLOYMENT

Employment growth is expected in services outside of health and tourism — with flat growth in government and manufacturing.

EDUCATION

Less than 50% of job postings indicate education as a requirement — an education stipulation gives colleges an opportunity to connect with employers.

52% of job postings that indicate education as a requirement ask for a bachelor or graduate degree; only 27% of the work force holds a bachelor or graduate degree.

Education matters for employment.

63% of the unemployed have a high school education or less.

Education attainment appears to be an issue.

UNEMPLOYMENT

Unemployment has been dropping — not due to an increase of jobs but a decrease of workers.

Unemployment is a problem for young and older workers.

50% of the unemployed are under the age of 34

AGE OF WORK FORCE

42% of the work force in production is within the 45-64 age group.

Area's manufacturing may be facing labor shortages in the next 10 years.

1 out every 5 jobs in the region is in manufacturing.

Healthcare represents 8-10% of the jobs in the region and have the highest percentage of the young workforce.

EMPLOYMENT CENTERS

Region 8 clearly has 3 employment centers: Kalamazoo County, Calhoun County and Berrien County.

AGRI-BUSINESS – 2025 ECONOMIC IMPACT

For every job generated in food processing (fruit and wine), more than 3 additional jobs are created.

'Assets are unique resources that make a region distinct in attracting the right mix of resilient and sustainable growth.'

West Michigan – Region 4

State, Non-Profit Sector and Regional Prosperity

- Model recognizes that the state is only one piece of the puzzle
- The Michigan Council of Foundations has already begun to think about the impact that non-profits can have as we proceed
- Engagement in each region varies and is left largely to the region to decide upon involvement
- State agencies, like Labor Market Information, are available to assist.
